

Chat notes: 1/12/14 – Session 3, meeting 1

from Michael Gray to Everyone:

It makes sense that thought needs a thinking space, physical appearance needs a physical space--just as a bird needs the air to fly, a fish the water to swim, and I need room for my fingers to type.

from Michael Gray to Everyone:

concomitant and precursor has the affect of invoking a non-linear view of time--the past and the present are one whole in appearance

from Eliana Kalaf (privately):

Hi Kathleen. It seems that there is no point of being connected: no image and no sound.

from Eliana Kalaf (privately):

It seems also that when the little window of webex is on I have no time to be connected

from Eliana Kalaf (privately):

So I am leaving the conference. Bye

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

TSK is inviting us to see more inclusiveness of possibilities...

to Guru (privately):

try to call into our meeting

from haywardf to Everyone:

Re the psycho-physical cause of experience: To have a brain damaged experience, do we need to have a brain that is damaged

from Michael Gray to Everyone:

It's as if the possibility of change makes change less imperative. If our experience of "reality" is open-the face of a mystery--then there is immediately a new breeze entering our world.

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

Perhaps cause or source definition could be: the circumstances that bring to view what is invoked?!
