

Online Chat: February 15, 2015

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

I love this excerpt from our last week reading:

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

If the emerging echoes of the field communiqué are allowed to enter this open field of 'space unknownness', (vacancy, accommodating), a dynamic is activated that transforms everything. The echoes of appearance no longer conspire to speak of substance. Echoing into silence, into the allowing of space, they do not lead to confinement and identity. Instead, they expand into space fullness.

from Philip Gold to Everyone:

Yes, Soudabeh, inspiring and exhilarating...

from ken mckeeon to Everyone:

So interesting that the self separates out from experience to become a knower at a distance, helpful to note that this move is a sort of a flickering insubstantiality, as such it's nothing to get hung up on.

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

cultivating a clear awareness, means ...the stillness that in meditation language is known //

from ken mckeeon to Everyone:

Mind here seems to be actively receptive.

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

it is a question

from ken mckeeon to Everyone:

Or receptively active!

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

Thank you

from Caroline Sherwood to Everyone:

The adventure of ongoingly allowing the dissolution of all limitations on what is allowed to be known.

from Eliana Kalaf to Everyone:

I see that the frame of mind influences what is going on. So, if I am aware of the quality of the mind, I can change it in order to be in tune to the surroundings. Tuning in can marry the knowledge inward with the knowledge outward.

from Eliana Kalaf to Everyone:

I change when I see that I am not open.

from Soudabeh Azizi to Everyone:

"... it we cultivate a clear awareness, this outward projection of knowledge can remain available 'inwardly'..."
this feels like self illuminating awareness that knows simultaneously what is projecting is a projection with out forgetting it ...or becoming forgetful of it and buying into the reality of this is the way things are ...

from Michael to Everyone:

It seems that eknosis is an invitation for the hemispheres of our brains to communicate. Left Hemisphere has no sense of self, body, location, properties but feels a oneness of all of life, all of being. right Hemisphere calculates, orientates, goes to work, recognizes faces and qualities. There are billions of neural cords connecting the two. If

from Michael to Everyone:

I just watched a touching insightful video of a woman who took 8 years to get back from her left hemishere stroke--I'll post it . . .